Expanding Our Work in the Face of Injustice

Ethiopia

For the past eight years, the Oakland Institute has exposed the impact that land grabs and failed development policies continue to have on indigenous communities in Ethiopia. Through this work, we have built relationships with inspiring community members and leaders on the ground.

Sadly, in recent years the Ethiopian government has brutally cracked down on dissent. As a result, many people including journalists, land rights defenders, opposition party members, religious and indigenous leaders, students, and many of our friends - have ended up in jail simply for raising their voices against injustice.

In January 2016, we partnered with the Environmental Defender Law Center to publish a legal analysis of Ethiopia's draconian Anti-Terrorism Proclamation. This law has been the cornerstone of countless arbitrary arrests and no comprehensive legal analysis of the law had been conducted. Our report - prepared by internationally acclaimed lawyers - clearly shows that Ethiopia's anti-terrorism law violates international human rights and due process standards. It has been used in numerous court cases in Ethiopia, including those of Pastor Omot Agwa and Mr. Okello Akway Ochalla, and was turned into an Amicus Curiae brief for the African Commission on Human and People's Rights.

Given the United States' status as the largest bilateral donor to Ethiopia, we have continued to work on securing legislative change here at home. For the past four years, we have ensured that the annual Appropriations Bill states that US development aid cannot be used for programs associated with forced displacements. In 2016, we also testified at the Tom Lantos Human Rights Commission and drafted a House Resolution on human rights in Ethiopia that is before Congress now.

Finally, we have worked tirelessly on the cases of two political prisoners in Ethiopia: Pastor Omot Agwa and Mr. Okello Akway Ochalla. Both of these men were arbitrarily detained under the Anti-Terrorism Proclamation on ridiculous charges, including attempting to attend a food security conference in Nairobi. After years of hard work and advocacy, we were relieved that the charges against Mr. Okello were dropped from terrorism to criminal charges, but devastated when those lowered charges still came with a nine year prison sentence. His appeal was recently denied, and his lawyers are currently examining final options for justice in his case. Pastor Omot was recently released on bail, after two years in detention. He has yet to be charged.

"When the world and the people who should have done this [the] right way turn back away from us ... I see you and your team standing with us, doing everything [to] come across the line to free my father. That is amazing work. I know we will rejoice one day when that day come[s]." - Obok Okello, Mr. Okello's son.

Sri Lanka

In 2014, when all eyes were turned away from the continued devastation taking place in Sri Lanka, Oakland Institute researchers were on the ground. Our ground-breaking field research led to the publication of the first independent investigation on land and human rights abuses since the civil war ended in 2009. This report was covered by major news outlets on all continents; brought international attention to the horrific abuses taking place in Sri Lanka's North and East; and, combined with our advocacy efforts, helped secure a United Nations Human Rights Resolution in October 2015.

Then, in February 2016, we received a humbling appeal from a group of internally displaced persons (IDPs) in Sri Lanka's North, who were forced off their land nearly 30 years ago:

"Having exhausted all the domestic, political, and legal avenues ... to regain our lands and houses acquired ... by the Sri Lankan armed forces during the war, we ... have decided to seek your help to find redress to our problem."

Over the past year, we have doubled down our efforts to support communities that are impacted by displacement and militarization in Sri Lanka's North and East. In May, we released an update on the land and human rights situation in these regions, providing both a critical analysis of the actions of Sri Lanka's new administration, and sharing the heartbreaking stories of the IDPs that reached out to us. We then testified to the office of the UN High Commissioner on Human Rights and the UN Special Rapporteur on Minority Issues as part of the 33rd Session of the UN Human Rights Council.

While abuses continue in the country, it is also clear that our work is having an impact. In November, we received the good news that most of the lands belonging to our IDP friends were released. They have begun the long, arduous process of returning home.

"You have tremendously helped us to raise our voice[s] internationally. Once again, we thank you for your untiring support." - IDP, Sri Lanka

Providing Communities with Tools of Truth in Cameroon and PNG

As a think tank working in solidarity with groups around the world, we provide research, media coverage, and tools of truth to the communities who need it most.

Three years ago, we exposed the dubious dealings of Herakles Farms, a US-based company that was set to obtain a 99-year lease for 73,000 hectares of land in Cameroon. Its plan? To deforest pristine rainforest and create a palm oil plantation.

Our research and advocacy at the time led to immediate results. Herakles Farms' lease was lessened to three years for less than 20,000 hectares of land. Now, that lease is up for renewal. On the eve of the renewal, the Institute released a new report based on cables obtained through a Freedom of Information Act request that exposed that the US government bullied Cameroon into accepting the deal.

Our report was picked up widely by media agencies and used by communities on the ground to ensure that the Herakles Farms deal is cancelled once and for all.

"We are short of words to express our gratitude for the marvelous work that the Oakland Institute is doing to free our communities, as well as communities around the world from wicked economic policies and business tactics used by governments and companies to marginalize and render communities landless." - Nasako Besingi, SEFE (Cameroon)

We have also continued to deepen our work and partnerships with communities in Papua New Guinea (PNG). In February 2016, the Institute released The Great Timber Heist, a new report that provided clear evidence that timber companies in the country were evading taxes and engaged in illegal practices.

The report was a game changer. It received massive media attention. It forced several government agencies, including the Minister of Forests, to publically respond to our research. And then, in November, the government took action and substantially increased their log export tax. This will drastically reduce logging and deforestation in PNG and was a direct result of the public outrage created by our report.

In addition to these great wins, in September PNG's Supreme Court returned 120,000 hectares of land to their rightful owners in East Sepik in a land grabbing case that we exposed in 2013.

We are empowered by these positive actions, and grateful to our partners on the ground in both Cameroon and PNG for their continued dedication, tireless work, and continued partnership.

Holding Powerful Actors Accountable

Over the years, the Oakland Institute has become known for holding powerful actors accountable around the world. 2016 was no different

In March, we investigated a new World Bank program - Enhancing Shared Prosperity through Equitable Services (ESPES) - meant to bring basic services to Ethiopians nationwide. The ESPES program mirrors and replaces the highly controversial Promoting Basic Services (PBS) program, which came under intense scrutiny after allegations surfaced of forced evictions and human rights abuses.

Our investigation not only exposed major flaws in the ESPES program, but also revealed that the US Treasury violated numerous congressional laws by voting in favor of it. Our report was picked up by many news outlets, and shortly after its publication, Representative Keith Ellison (D-MN) filed a formal inquiry with the US Treasury about its actions.

As part of our ongoing involvement in the Our Land Our Business campaign, we have continued to scrutinize the impact of the World Bank's Enabling the Business of Agriculture (EBA) program.

In May, we exposed how a coalition of four donor countries - the US, UK, Netherlands, and Denmark - along with the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation is shaping a pro-business environment in the agricultural sector of developing countries. These five donors, who bankroll the highly problematic EBA program, are rapidly expanding bilateral and multilateral aid programs to support corporate agriculture, forcing governments to deregulate and create new market opportunities for agrochemical corporations.

As part of this campaign, we called on the five donors to withdraw their support of the EBA. The Netherlands responded that they would stop financing the EBA in June 2016, and the Denmark is currently re-assessing their support of the program.

Finally, we continued to dispel development myths. As Ethiopia spiraled into political crisis, the Institute released a cutting edge report analyzing Ethiopia's deeply problematic "development" model. Key to this model is making Ethiopia one of the world's largest sugar producers. Our report offered harsh lessons from Ethiopia's own history of establishing sugar and cotton plantations in the Afar region in the 1950s. These plantations drastically reduced land and water availability for people and cattle, undermined food security, and destroyed drought coping mechanisms, leading to conflict in the region. The report also detailed how plantation agriculture has been less profitable than pastoralist livestock production in Afar, demonstrating the flawed narrative of Ethiopian officials and donor countries who continue to prop-up the country as a miracle of growth.

Together, these reports have helped shape an alternative narrative of development, dispelled the myths about corporate agriculture, and exposed the truth behind various illegal and problematic actions of donor countries and agencies.

Looking Forward

As we look towards the year to come, it is clear that our work is more important than ever. We pride ourselves on finding issues that aren't getting the attention they deserve, and bringing them to the fore. We are unwavering in our commitment to communities on the ground, and advocating for the justice they deserve. And we are steadfast in our resolve to speak truth to power.
