Form 990 p 2: Line 4a Description-1

As a leading independent think tank, the Oakland Institute (OI) is bringing fresh ideas and bold action to the most pressing social, economic, and environmental issues of our time.

In 2017, our research and advocacy, in collaboration with impacted communities was aimed at ensuring land rights, food security, indigenous rights and protection of the environment and biological diversity, while creating space for true development alternatives. We share below a few examples to demonstrate our accomplishments.

Ethiopia: 2017 saw the continuation of a brutal crackdown on land rights, basic freedoms, and democracy in Ethiopia. The state of emergency was lifted in August 2017 but the government has continued to rule with an iron fist, including threatening the US Congress that it will pull out of regional counter-terrorism efforts if a house resolution on human rights in Ethiopia (HR 128), which the Institute helped draft, was adopted.

The Oakland Institute, through advocacy, however, continued to put pressure on the US - Ethiopia's largest bilateral donor - to take strong action, including advocating for the passage of HR 128; supporting Ethiopian land rights defenders; ensuring that language regarding development schemes and related forced evictions remains in all forthcoming Appropriations Bills; testifying at Congressional and Senate briefings, and providing ongoing analysis of the situation in the country through blogs, statements, and public events. After nine years of work in Ethiopia, we are glad to see an opening where over 7,000 political prisoners have been released since January 2018, including several land rights defenders. Our work has also helped bring together different ethnic groups, who have traditionally not worked together, to present a united resistance to the authoritarian state.

Supporting Land Rights Defenders: 2017 was one of the deadliest years for land rights defenders around the world. In the face of this growing crisis, our legal defense fund supported groups at the forefront of the global struggle for land and life in Madagascar, Palestine, Ethiopia, Cameroon, PNG, and Tanzania. We are glad to see our work on behalf of our colleagues. We secured the release of Cameroonian land rights activist Nasako Besingi and an indigenous Anuak land rights activist Okello Akway Ochalla, as well as securing asylum in the US for Admasu Lokaley, from the Nyogtham community in Lower Omo in Ethiopia.

In October 2017, we hosted five land rights defenders from Palestine, Ethiopia, Madagascar, and Papua New Guinea for a week at our offices in Oakland, providing an opportunity for an international strategy session and a public event where these courageous leaders shared their struggles with media, funders, and other collaborators in the US.

Green Resources / Uganda: Our 2014 report on Green Resources (GR), a Norwegian forestry plantation and carbon credit company operating in Uganda and its 11,000 ha plantation which forcibly evicted thousands of villagers from their land, secured immediate wins: the company's only carbon credit buyer - the Swedish Energy Agency (SEA) - suspended funding in 2015 and outlined ten necessary actions for GR to undertake to reinstate payments. In 2016, its major shareholder, Phaunos Timber Fund, divested from the company.

In December 2017, in advance of the SEA's reassessment of GR, we published Carbon Colonialism, an irrefutable indictment on the failure of the company to address the harmful impacts of its project. The report debunked a recent audit that presented GR as being compliant in most areas of reform that the SEA demanded, and instead revealed that local communities continue to face an acute hunger crisis - a result of them denied access to water, firewood, and land for grazing animals.

Our report generated widespread media attention; was accompanied by a letter, sent by the Oakland Institute and ten other organizations to the SEA asking it stop funding GR once and for all. We are now launching a petition drive demanding that the SEA sever its relationship with GR and ensure justice for the villagers impacted by the plantation.

Sri Lanka: Following our 2015 and 2016 reports on land issues in Sri Lanka, we have continued to support internally displaced peoples (IDPs) with their struggles to return home. In March 2017, while Sri Lanka's "progress" on transitional justice was under review at the UN, we released Justice Denied, exposing the myriad issues that continue to plague land release and resettlement in the country, and the failure of the government to fulfill its international commitments to transitional justice.

Our work continues to have impact. In addition to the news that the IDPs we supported had their lands released, both the UK and Canadian governments are using our reports to inform their decision to grant refugee status and asylum to thousands of Tamil refugees.

Papua New Guinea: Our work continued to secure significant wins in PNG, including changes to log export taxes as a result of our report The Great Timber Heist. To build upon this momentum and to elevate the voices of the impacted communities we released Taking on the Logging Pirates, highlighting the struggles of six land rights defenders in PNG.

World Bank / EBA: We continue to coordinate the multi-continental Our Land Our Business campaign, challenging the World Bank's role in enabling the corporate takeover of agriculture and natural resources. Alongside the release of the report Down on the Seed, 157 organizations and academics from around the world joined us to denounce the privatization of seeds. Just weeks later, the World Bank incorporated language directly from our report in the EBA 2017 report - which guides government's agricultural policies around the world - recognizing for the first time the value of farmer-managed seed systems.

Additionally, our campaigning resulted in two of the EBA's five anchor donors - DANIDA and the Dutch government - ending their funding. Consultants for DfID, a third anchor donor, have also reached out to the Institute to evaluate its continued financing. We are working for the remaining anchor donors, (DfID, Gates Foundation, and USAID) to withdraw funding from this deeply flawed program.

Palestine: To mark 50 years since the Six-Day War and Israel's occupation, the Institute embarked on field research and a bold new multimedia project on land rights in Palestine, entitled Palestine: For Land and Life. The project brought forward stories of courageous activists, farmers, and community leaders across the West Bank and humanized one of the most polarizing issues of our time by weaving together history and policy issues with inspirational stories of resistance, resilience, and a call for justice.

At a time when US foreign policy in the Middle East is further dividing the region, as a US-based think tank focused on land issues, we were able to lend our credibility to this struggle. Palestine: For Land and Life has been used extensively by local groups, including the Palestine Heirloom Seed Library, Canaan Palestine, Youth Against Settlements, and the BADIL Resource Center for Palestinian Residency & Refugee Rights, among others.

Struggle for Justice in the US: With the election of Donald Trump, the Institute took on important new research to expose the erosion of democracy in the US. In 2017 we released a groundbreaking report on notorious Blackwater founder, Erik Prince. Containing never-seen-before information, the report tracks Prince's post-Blackwater maneuvers, exposing his power to shape and manipulate the US foreign policy agenda. This ongoing push to privatize US military operations could have massive ramifications around the world. As Prince continues to consider a run for Congress, we remain committed to exposing his nefarious acts.

Newsworthy Achievements: For years, the Ethiopian government, despite its consistent use of Anti-Terrorism Proclamation to detain thousands of politicians, journalists, religious and indigenous leaders, and land rights activists, has denied that there are political prisoners in the country. Over the last ten years, we have not only produced original research on failed development policies of the government, but also led advocacy campaigns targeted at the donors including the US government and the World Bank, and provided legal support to individuals and communities at the forefront of this struggle. In early 2018, the Government of Ethiopia released 7,000 political prisoners. Our work ensured that included in this release was indigenous land rights defender Okello Akway Ochalla. In 2017, we also provided bail for Pastor Omot Agwa and supported asylum claims for marginalized indigenous activists from the Lower Omo region. Our research is being used by the Congress and diaspora groups that have put Ethiopia in the front pages of media around the world.
