

What sets our work apart is the ability to successfully combine meticulous research, strong advocacy campaigns, and effective communications strategies — in collaboration with the impacted communities. Here is a sampling of the extensive media generated around the struggle of the Maasai in Tanzania against evictions — being done in the name of conservation and safari tourism.

Tanzania squeezes Maasai by seizing livestock, report says

By WANJOHI KABUKURU January 27, 2023

'It's becoming a war zone': Tanzania's Maasai speak out on 'forced' removals

Communities in Ngorongoro say government is shutting down vital services to remove them from ancestral lands to expand lucrative game reserves

Is Conservation Becoming Colonialism in Tanzania?

Tourism initiatives and conservation of UNESCO heritage sites have led to forced evictions of Indigenous peoples.

In focus: Tanzania's Maasai claim 'forced evictions'

DW NEWS AFRICA

dw.com | @dwnews

LE MONDE diplomatique

'THE GOVERNMENT ONLY LIKE US AS A TOURIST ASSET'

Tanzania forces the Maasai from their land to make way for trophy hunters and tourists

In Tanzania, the Maasai may lose their land – again

In Tanzania, a way of life hangs in the balance

ALJAZEERA

Tanzanian Maasai battle eviction from ancestral land

Security forces seek to move thousands of people to make way for a luxury game reserve

www.oaklandinstitute.org

Tanzania on spot over police brutality when evicting Maa community

Maasai villages lose important court case as wildlife game reserve trudges on

Tanzania, siding with UAE firm, plans to evict Maasai from ancestral lands

Maasai protesters shot, beaten as Tanzania moves forward with wildlife game reserve

Tension in Tanzania's Loliondo area as troops move in to evict the Maasai

Tanzania's Masai fight eviction from UNESCO World Heritage Site

Indigenous Maasai ask the United Nations to intervene on human rights abuses

After violent evictions, Indigenous Maasai call human rights investigation a sham

Tanzania drops murder charges against 24 Maasai land defenders

Indigenous Maasai in Tanzania face resettlement sites with 'critical flaws'

Think Tank Reveals 'Serious Issues' With Maasai 'Relocation' From Ngorongoro

Tracking Extinction

Il falso Eden di Ngorongoro

Rights Group Says Tanzania Seizing Animals of Herders

Des Massai expulsés de force, au profit de la chasse aux trophées

Inside Climate News

In an Attempt to Wrestle Away Land for Game Hunters, Tanzanian Government Fires on Maasai Farmers, Killing Two

More than 70 000 Maasai evicted from ancestral grounds in Tanzania

Reporter's Notebook: The Crisis Nobody Knows About on the Kenya-Tanzania Border

The Border Chronicle

Reportage from where a private company and state-led border building converge to violently evict people from their ancestral land.

Tanzanian authorities seen opening fire on Maasai people in game reserve dispute

Tanzania is using murder charges to get nomadic Maasai off their homelands

L'OBS

a Rhinocéros, zèbres, girafes... Au nord de la Tanzanie, 30 000 mammifères vivent dans un jardin d'Eden menacé

Tanzanian Maasai live in fear after native lands reclassified for safari tourism and trophy hunting

Fortress Conservation: Tension in Tanzania's Loliondo as troops move in to evict Maasai to make way for game reserve

Eviction threat in Tanzania turns pro-trophy hunting argument on its head

'We Have Nowhere Else to Go': Thousands of Maasai Face Eviction From Their Ancestral Lands

Trophy hunting and elite tourism condemns the Maasai eviction in Tanzania

Ancestral land of Maasai people trophy-hunting grounds for UAE royals

The struggles of the Ngorongoro Maasai

